LAWYER CARPENTER'S ACT IN A MOMENT OF DESPONDENCY.

A Happy Wife and Daughter, Expecting His Return, Receive Instead the Terrible News of His Loss-The Troubles Which Led to Mr. Carpenter's Sulcide-His Nephew's Story of the Tragedy.

Heart-rending news was carried to Mrs. G. W. Carpenter and her three daughters, this morning, at their home No. 43 West One Hundred and Thirtieth street.

It was that the husband and father, G. W. Carpenter, of the law firm of Carpenter & Ingersoll, at 18 Wall street, had thrown himself from the deck of the steamer Arizona, of the Guion line, on Thursday last, and was

The intelligence was a terrible blow to the household. Only a few minutes before an EVENING WORLD reporter was met at the front door by a charming young lady, happy as a lark, and when the reporter asked to see her father she said smilingly:

' Papa? Why, he is on his way home from Europe We expect him home to-day. Won't you come in and see mamme?"

Mrs. Carpenter was happy, too, expecting Mrs. Carpenter was happy, too, expecting her husband's return any moment. She had received a telegram from Dr. George H. Richards, dated at Staten Island, last night, saying he would be in New York this morning. Dr. Richards is a nephew of Mr. Carpenter, who lives at Orange, N. J. On July 31, he and Mr. Carpenter started on a trip to Europe, for pleasure and for the benefit of Mr. Carpenter's health, the lawyer having been suffering with a liver trouble for some months. They went directly to Glasgow and spent

Mr. Carpenter apparently enjoyed his trip and was somewhat improved in health, but he was still melancholy, which was parily due to the fact that about ten years ago his aring was destroyed. His fits of despondency neither the air of Scotland nor the sea were able to dispel.

The start of the two men for home was made sooner than had been planned, because Mr. Carpenter began to long for his wife and

Mr. Carpenter began to long for his wife and children.

Dr. Richards, in giving the account of their return trip, said that Mr. Carpenter appeared to be in very good spirits on the ship, and he felt very much encouraged about him. On Thursday afternoon, Dr. Richards says, he and his patient were sitting together on the upper deck of the Arizona. They chatted pleasantly for some time, when Dr. Richards had occasion to go below for a few minutes. When he returned to the upper deck Mr. Carpenter's chair was empty, and he was nowhere in sight. It was thought that he had gone below for something, so the vessel was not stopped, but a search was instituted at once.

"He did not give any alarm," said the dector, "and it was not until a thorough search failed to reveal my uncle that I became convinced that he had jumped overboard.

'He did it in a fit of despondency. He was out of health, was deaf, and small troubles looked to him to be great." As soon as the Arizona arrived at her pier, No. 38, in the North River, this morning Dr. Richards came ashore and went to announce the sad news to the widow and daughters of Mr. Carpenter.

Mr. Carpenter's law partner, Mr. H. D. Ingersoll, was ignorant of the facts until told of them by an Evening World reporter. He had confidently expected that his partner would arrive safely in New York on the Arizona, and had prepared to meet him.

The missing man was not found on board, and the only thing that could be learned about him was wrung out of a young deckhand, or a cabin boy, the doctor does not know which.

This boy said he thought he heard a splash in the water, and noticed that Mr. Carnetter

STRIVING FOR DANNY'S LIFE.

Lyons's Counsel Raises Some Fine Points of

Law Before Judge Patterson. Justice Patterson, in Supreme Court, Chambers, to-day heard the argument on Danny Lyons's plea for a writ of habeas

In Court was the old mother of Danny. She was dressed in mourning, and tears streamed down her wrinkled cheeks as Lawyer Blake referred to her boy, the slayer of yer Blake referred to her boy, the slayer of Joseph Quinn, the sthlete.

The writ of habeas corpus is asked for under sections 503 and 504 of the Penal Code as amended in 1887.

Lyons was first convicted Sept. 26, 1887, before Recorder Smyth. By the law of May, 1887, he was compelled to go direct to the Court of Appeals instead of the General Term. The Court of Appeals affirmed his cenviction, and by the general law he was returned to Recorder Smyth and resentenced to hang Aug. 17.

Bection 503 with the amendments of 1887 reads like this:

reads like this :

reads like this:

Whenever, for any reason other than insanity or pregnancy, a defendant sentenced to the pun'shment of death, has not been executed pursuant to the seatence, at the time specified thereby, and the sentence of judgment inflicting the punishment stands in full force, the Court of Appeals, or judge thereof, or the Supreme Court, or a justice thereof, or the Supreme Court, or a justice thereof, or the District-Atterney of the county where the conviction was had, must make an order, directed to the Sheriff, commanding him to bring the convict before the Court of Appeals, or General Term of the Supreme Court in the department, or a term of a Court of Oyer and Termier in the county where the conviction was had.

By section 504 this Court must, if no legal reason exists against it, fix a new day for the execution.

Mr. Blake said that, as Lyons's counsel, it

Mr. Blake said that, as Lyons's counsel, it was his duty to fight for every extra hour of life attainable for his client.

He claimed that Lyons was detained by Sheriff Grant illegally, as Sections 503 and 504 were clearly modifiers of the general law, which directs that the original court must resentence after an unsuccessful appeal to a higher tribunal, and that the sections were mandatory on both the Court of Appeals and the District-Attorney.

The lawyer did not question the right of the Court to retain custody of Lyons, but insisting that the resentence should have been by the General Term, the Court of Oyer and Terminer or a judge of the Court of Appeals. He contended that the present sentence was illegal, and suggested that after Lyons had been removed from the custody of the Sheriff the Court might return him to the custody of Warden Osborne until the Court of Appeals had sent him to a proper court for resentence.

Mr. Blake's second point was that the law peals had sent him to a proper court for resentence.

Mr. Blake's second point was that the law of 1887 compelling Lyons to go to the Court of Appeals direct, was unconstitutional. He contended that the Legislature had no power to take away the Appellate jurisdiction of the General Term.

Assistant District-Attorney Goff replied to these arguments, and Justice Patterson reserved his decision.

Unless the writ and stay are granted Lyons will hang on the 21st, a week from to-morrow, Gov. Hill having granted four days' respite.

Morris Wolf, who kept a clothing manuactory on the fifth floor of the ill-fated buildng, was the first witness

He testified that he warned his workmen

He testified that he warned his workmen of the fire and made an effort to find a means of escape for all of them. Of thirteen workmen eleven escaped.

Henry Wachsman, a coat cutter employed by Wolf, said that he succeeded in gaining the first floor of the building next door, and after he reached the street he saw a man who wore eye-glasses close the iron shutters, cutting off all means of escape for the others.

Abram Schneider, the proprietor of a coat shop on the third floor of the building, stated that he and his men helped eighteen or twenty persons through their windows fronting the alleyway. He saw some one close his iron shutters, but could not remember who it was.

A passably pretty young woman took the stand when the Coroner called "Annie Morris." She had been saved by Schneider, but could give no information as to who closed the windows.

James Healy a scene shifter in the People's Theatre, testified that he had warned the people in the burning building to keep cool, but as he spoke no German his advice was not heeded.

DARK SECRET SAFE

the Bulgaria Last Sighted by Friday.

Capt. Andrews Was Then 1,400 Miles at Sea.

Record of the Adventurous Little Craft.

INPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD,] Boston, Aug. 18.—The Bulgaria, which just arrived at this port, reports sighting the Dark Secret while 1,400 miles out last Friday. Capt. Andrews, of the Dark Secret, reported

The cutter Stranger, which sailed from Boston July 28, arrived in Queenstown yesterday. A special cable despatch to THE WORLD says that the Stranger encountered heavy seas and bad weather, losing her bowsprit and springing her mainboom. The gale lasted three days-Aug. 3 to 6.

The Stranger's path was the same as that taken by Capt. Andrews in his dory, the Dark Secret, in his trip from Boston to Queenstown, but the Stranger caught no glimpse of the Boston skipper or his cockleshell, and fears have been expressed that gallant Capt. Andrews has been lost. There is widespread interest in his adventurous cruise in England as well as on this side of the water.

In 1878 Capt. Andrews made a similar cruise across the blue in a nineteen-foot dory, the Nautilus, in forty-five days. He had his brother, Asa W. Andrews, for company on that cruise.

On July 4 last Capt. William A. Andrews set out from the Point of Pines, Boston Harbor, for Queenstown in the smallest craft that ever tempted mid-ocean seas.
The Dark Secret is only twelve feet long and its akingar is a weekly back or restricted. and its skipper is a weather-beaten mariner, whose nautical knowledge is second to none whose nautical knowledge is second to none on earth.

Over twenty thousand people gathered to see Skipper Andrews and his boat off on the evening of Independence Day, when the start was made, and the captain told them all that he would reach the other side inside of forty-five days.

THE DARK SECRET.

The little dory was accounted with pro-visions enough for her lonely skipper for 100 days.

Her cargo included 100 bottles of Apol-Her cargo included 100 bottles of Apollinaris water, 50 pounds of biscuits in airtight cans, 15 cans of Boston baked beans, 10 cans of vegetables, 4 cans of corned beef, a can of condensed milk, lemons, a ham, a cake, a loaf of bread, foghorn, matches, knife, fork, and a dozen small articles.

On July 8 the tiny craft was spoken off the Georges, in latitude 42 degrees by the schooner Laura Nelson.

On July 12 the North German Lloyd steamship Ems saw the baby ocean voyageur a little further out. Capt. Jungst wanted Capt. Andrews to come aboard and ride into New York, but the skipper answered proudly: "This is the Dark Secret and she's bound for Queenstown, Good-by."

Skipper Andrews sent some messages to The Wohld and went on.

Pilot Murphy, of the pilot-boat American, saw the dory 420 miles out at sea on July 11, and he, too, tried to persuade the doughty skipper to abandon his perilous undertaking, but unsuccessfully.

The German steamer Saale met Skipper Andrews, July 19, 500 miles out, and he was all right then.

The India was the third transatlantic steamer to sight the Dark Secret. Capt. Jameson brought to The World Capt. Andrews's message delivered on Aug. 1 about eight hundred and sixty-four miles out.

The dory had made about thirty-one miles a day, despite the adverse winds and bad weather, and the friends of Capt. Andrews Postponoment of His Trial on the Charge of Abducting Elen Eline. 1888, by The Press Publishing Company (New York World).

[SPECIAL CABLE DESPATOR TO THE WORLD.] LONDON, Aug. 13. - The trial of Oscar Moeller of ear-old heiress, from New York, came up in Boy treet Court to-day. George and Frederick Mead, the well-known criminal lawyers, appeared to asist the prosecution.

Mrs. Elias, the girl's mother, told the story in court of the two elopements of the daughter and the prisoner substantially as cabled to THE WORLD. Her testimony showed a clever conspiracy on he part of Moeller and partner to capture the girl and the $250,000 to which she is entitled on her

A representative of the German Consul in Cour said the German Government had begun preceed-ings for Moeller's extradition, and wanted to try im there. Moeiler had a German friend in Court who said the prisoner was prepared to prove that the girl was in love with Moeller, and he started for New her property rights.

Moniter wanted more time till counsel and wit seeses on his behalf should come from Germany. Lawyer Untermeyer, of New York, wanted to bring the giri into court to testify and contradict Mociler, but Judge Bridge would not allow it till Moeiler had counsel to cross-examine her, and adsarped the trial further one week to allow the

It was downright hard work that enabled the team to overtake Chicago with its former lead and asoume second place.

It was "playing ball" in the most scientific fashion known to the modern diamond, and with an eniusiasm and exprit de corps rarely winnessed that prought them to first place and has kept them there with an increasing lead.

This week Anson's men and the Welvertines will endeavor to regain part of their lost presting, and natrow, if possible, the wide breach that the Glants have opened. It is very probable that the Glants have opened. It is very probable that the Glants have opened. It is very probable that the Glants have opened. It is very probable that the Glants have opened. It is very probable that the Glants have opened. It is very probable that the Glants have opened in the least four out of the six games. So it is extremely ilmely that has multitade of the Glants' admirers shall restlify their admiration and cheer the boys on to further victories.
